Uniform Cloud

The power of Uniform, migrated to the cloud
so you can do more

With mounting pressures to meet rising demand for services combined with diminishing budgets, councils continue to seek new methods to do more, with less. Public sector organisations are a target for cybercriminals and with cyber–attacks on local authorities regularly dominating the headlines, the risk of service disruption is now greater than ever.

How can councils continue to innovate and improve front line services in a safe, secure, compliant and cost–effective way? Hosting Uniform in the cloud provides an ideal environment for councils to become more agile, scalable and resilient – enabling them to focus on delivering improved public services at a time when they are needed most.

Robust & reliable

IT teams continue to have existing resources placed under growing demands as councils transition to more digital services. But by hosting Uniform in the cloud, IT support functions including data storage, maintenance, upgrades and security are all expertly managed and executed remotely.

As a result, local authorities can free up time and resource to focus on vital service delivery.

All under one roof

Our cloud-hosted Uniform system has been built by ex-local government staff, with deep domain knowledge. As part of our fully hosted and managed service provision, your technology stack and related applications will be kept fully updated and managed in a safe and secure environment designed for 24/7 operation.

We can help deliver on your cloud strategy, with council IT teams fully supported throughout the entireprocess, migrating your data and processes with ease to all be under one, secure, compliant roof.

Certified compliance & security

As the developers of Uniform – fully hosted and managed by Idox in a dedicated private cloud – we've created an environment for the most effective operation of our products.

By migrating Uniform to the cloud, local authorities can offload the burden of IT compliance and headache of keeping IT systems secure and maintained. With dedicated in-house expertise specialised in all elements of security and compliance, we ensure full protection so security is never compromised.
